- one new release added

Introduction

This is a companion list to the Sandy Denny Discography.

At the start (after this introduction) is a summary of all releases included in this list.

This list references most releases that I know of, and that I have track information for. Most of these I own, a few I don't. I have included song timings for the releases that I have. Songs are timed from first note to last.

Releases are numbered. This numbering is arbitrary, but provides a handle for quickly searching out a particular release. Releases are ordered roughly chronologically by release date, although for early recordings, guest appearances, bootlegs, and private tapes/discs, the ordering is chronological by recording date. Numbering uses a "P" prefix for Pre-Fairport releases; "F" for official Fairport (and related) releases, including Fotheringay and The Bunch; "SD" for solo releases, "V" for various-artists compilations and retrospective releases by particular artists, "G" for releases by other artists with Sandy as guest; "S" for singles, "B" for bootleg releases, and "T" for private CD-Rs and tapes.

Dates are usually written out in full, but if there are a few given by just numbers, they are in U.S. format (mm/dd/yy).

For studio tracks, I have used information based on Clinton Heylin's sessionography in his book No More Sad Refrains (Helter Skelter, 2000). In general, this list derives heavily from Heylin's book, and full credit is given for that. Reinhard Zierke's website also provides huge amounts of information about releases, and contains many more details on songs that are valuable:

<http://www.informatik.uni-hamburg.de/~zierke/sandy.denny/>

Ian Rennie's "Expletive Delighted" site contains a great deal of information on the different releases of each album and was also valuable:

<http://www.musikfolk.co.uk/expletive-delighted/index.html>

Finally, Ken Garner's book In Session Tonight: Complete Radio 1 Recordings (BBC Books, 1993) provided much detail on Sandy's BBC recordings.

The layout of this list is by song, with performances listed below each entry, whether recordings are known to exist or not. Song timing are included for each source of which I have a copy. Releases I don't own are also listed, but without song timings. Here is an example:

BOOK SONG

- | | |
|---|------|
| (s, De Lane Lea) 03 September 1968 with Fairport | (1) |
| F01) WHAT WE DID ON OUR HOLIDAYS | 3:12 |
| F01a) WHAT WE DID ON OUR HOLIDAYS (EXPANDED EDITION) | 3:13 |
| SD18) SANDY DENNY (BOX SET) | 3:13 |
| (r, David Symonds Show) 27 December 1968 with Fairport mono | (2) |
| F18) LIVE AT THE BBC | 3:06 |
| V19) DOOM AND GLOOM FROM THE TOMB VOL.1 | |
| B03) FAIRPORT CONVENTION - A CHRONICLE OF SORTS 1967 - 1969 | 3:06 |
| T43) SANDY DENNY - THE TREE | 3:05 |

Below the song title is given a list of performances, including venue, date, and a brief note concerning the personnel. For each performance, the releases on which that version of the song appears are also listed, with timings shown at the right margin. On the red venue/date line, the first letter before the venue indicates whether the recording is studio (s), live (l), radio (r), television (TV), or a private recording (p) such as a home demo. At the right margin of the venue/date line is an index number in () which is a shorthand way of referring to that particular version of a song. Thus Book Song (2) is the version of that song recorded on 27 December 1968 for BBC radio. Each song has every performance identified by a different number, running from (1) to however many versions of that song I know of.

The index numbers have initially been assigned chronologically, except that live performances are numbered last in the sequence. The order of these numbers isn't important, and new numbers will be assigned out of order. They should just be treated as a unique identifier for a particular version of a song. A new index number is allocated for each performance of a song, and also for different mixes of the same performance. The idea is to be as complete as possible in describing all different versions of every song.

Performances of songs for which recordings are not known are also listed, and given index numbers. This is just in case recordings do turn up in the future, but also to present a more complete picture of when and where particular songs were performed or recorded.

For studio recordings, it is not always known on exactly which date the recording took place. In addition, there may be studio dates that refer to overdubs as well as dates that refer to the recording of the basic track. In general, all possible dates associated with the recording of a particular song are listed, and most of these come from Heylin's book.

Some tracks are included on which Sandy does not participate. These are usually tracks from releases covering time periods where Sandy was in a group, but didn't sing or play on every song on the album, or participate in every song performed at a concert. They are still listed for completeness. Generally, songs on which Sandy does not appear are not listed if the releases are in the "G" or "V" category (guest appearance, retrospective, or various-artist (anthology) releases).

Official compilation releases are generally excluded, except for a few cases where some material had its first release there (or first official CD release). The same applies for official "various artists" anthology releases, with the same exception.

The "Singles and EPs" category includes all singles by all artists on which Sandy participates. Like the rest of the categories, this one is not complete; but I'll continue to add entries as I get information.

Private CD-Rs and tapes are included, but only the ones I have. So this section may not be of great use to others. However, with the advent of mass trading via CD-R or internet, more private releases are circulating under a uniform name, so this section may be of more use to other people now than it used to be.

The companion discography listing gives complete contents of all releases covered here. This is where the song index numbers become convenient, since listings are augmented with those numbers to make clear exactly what versions of the songs are included on each release.

Finally, I try to update this list as new information becomes available - it's always evolving. There are collectors' tapes that I don't yet have. I hope to include more in later versions.
